Ph.D. thesis submitted by TARUNPREET SINGH THIND
in the Faculty of Life Sciences (Botany)
Guru Nanak Dev University, Amritsar

CITATION

Mt. Tarunpreet Singh Thind has done an original piece of work on the "Bioprospection of Schleicheria oleosa (Lour.) Oken for its Antiproliferative and Antioxidative Potential". The research presented in the thesis provides a comprehensive focus to identify the chemical compounds for their possible therapeutic use in the treatment of human cancer. The candidate has done a very good job reviewing the cancer literature particularly with the use of other botanicals being used for their anticancer activities. The data is discussed brilliantly and correlated with current status of research in the field of phytochemistry. The study has made a worthy contribution towards plant based drug discovery system for the reduction of cancer incidences globally. It further points out the possible future prospects or un-explored areas where future research work can be carried out. The work is quite impressive and well supported in the form of publications in the journals of International repute with good impact factors.
